Mr. Strempeke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Strempeke, attended Jesup high school, graduating in 1936. Since then his career at Wartburg has been a busy one, organized by the faculty and the student body and his scholarship and especially in extra-curricular activities.

Chief among these is his present position as business manager of the Fortress. He is also president of the chapter, an active member of the debate squad, the dramatics club, Luther League, pre-theological society, band, a member of the trumpet staff and a member of Grossmann hall dormitory council.

In the field of athletics he showed his ability at the Cedar Rapids state meet March 16, where he won a superior rating in both the after-dinner speaking and poetry reading contests.

He has played leading roles in all three major productions of the Wartburg players during the current year.

Mr. Strempeke is pursuing a pre-theological course with an English minor.

Mr. Strempeke has had a wide range of experience in student government, having been a member of the student senate, and the student body president for the past year. He is also president or the debate squad, has served both as sports and features editor of the Fortress, and is a member of the dramatics club, pre-theological society, Luther League and the Fortress staff. FORTRESS IN N. S. P. C. CONTEST

Yearbook Features
Two Colors; Book
in Hands of Printers.

The 1941 Fortress for the first time in Wartburg's history will be entered in competition with yearbooks all over the United States through the National School Press Association, which annually sponsors a contest for yearbooks.

This association both criticizes and rewards yearbooks submitted to them. It has included the American Honor Rollings for superior books. First Class Honors for excellent books; Second Class Honors for good books; and Third Class Honors for fair books. The two-color scheme, special swed binding and a large number of pages are some of the important factors in the competition in the 1941 Fortress. An index of all 1940-41 students with their home addresses is included in this year's book, an added convenience for Fortress contestants.

All copy and engravings are now in the hands of the printers and, according to a letter Tuesday, the prints will be completed within a few days. After the books have been printed, they will be sent to Des Moines for binding after which they will be ready for distribution.

It is now almost certain that the Fortress budget will show a balance at the end of the year.

The school board has a plan to buy a camera for next year's secretary-treasurer.

The school board has a plan to Wartburg last fall from Augustana college, Minneapolis, which he attended during his freshman and sophomore years. He graduated from the Minneapolis High School Academy in Minneapolis.

He is also vice president of the Luther league, a member of the pre-theological society and a reporter on the Trumpet staff.

A Philosophy of Life

Man comes into the world with his consciences and leaves it again with all. When he is little, big girls kiss him, and when he is big, little girls kiss him. If he is good, he is popular; if he is bad, he is not. Interested in politics, he is no good to his country. If he is good, he is a good citizen; if he is dishonest, he is poor; he is a bad manager. If he is religious, he is a saint; if he is not, he is a sinner. If he gives to charity, it is for show; if he doesn't, he is stingy. If he is good, his affectionate is good; if he is bad, his affectionate is bad. For anyone, he is cold-hearted. If he dies young, there was a reason; if he dies old, he is missed his calling. If he saves his money, he is a tightwad; if he spends it, he is a spendthrift. If he has money, he is a grater; if he hasn't got it, he's a bum.

SO WHAT'S THE USE?

—Author Unknown.

and talk to one another? Didn't they care about the lovely buildings?

The water in the mill stream chortles as you slap it with a little stone. It is muddy green and flows passionately on its way. It is used to being left alone. There are no boats floating on its back.

Why aren't there any boats? What happened to all the people and buildings? Why did they simply leave? Didn't they have any air raid shelters at all?

The sun is coming out now. Listen, the little birds are singing louder.

QUIPS & QUIRKS

from the editor's desk

And would you believe it? This is the second consecutive year that Wartburg and nearby Iowa chose the same day for Senior Day. Senior Week idea is still and also, "What is the idea?"

And speaking of consecutive occurrences, Tuesday's last game was the first time Penn has downed Wartburg in baseball in ten years.

Now is the time of year when certain groups of students take a more than usual (if possible) interest in the mail man. That group in Wartburg's crop of students is the one that seems to mean a lot to them. By the way, it seems that vacancies are plenty this year—probably because of the draft.

Sunday afternoon the annual matins service received a morale boost from the patriotic "Gone with the Wind" was practically every student on the campus. Goes to show that the kids came back from Easter recess financially replenished.

It has been suggested that as my first "Tin Cup" assignment I should have the titanic task of reporting on new library books. It seems that last year when Lew Price gave up his position, the library gave up his position for the following issue.

Have you heard about the letters a Wartburg Hall resident wrote to his two "fraselines"? He got the letters in the wrong envelopes. "None of them writes me," says Rudy.

The new shabbiness around Luther hall is a decided improvement. Not only does it look better, but it removes the temptation to taxify students to cut across the corner.

Rural School day was very much observed on Wartburg's campus. It would be interesting if for a moment we could shed 10 years of academic thought and have a day of fun. I wonder if the eyes of a little child wonder if they were impressed. College is a far cry from the one-room rural school that many Wartburg students remember.

College will also seem to have been born again. The students who find themselves teaching a one-room school next year with 30 classes daily to keep them occupied. It's a good idea to concentrate on the class and keep a wary eye on the rest of the "student body" simultaneously.

That is why I always thought that the teaching profession works things backwards in the grades. A teacher begins with 12 to 16 students in the first grade, and with 5 to 6 grades, teaching from 10 to 12 different subjects in 10-minute classes. She does her job with the greatest of enthusiasm, and for advice has a superintendant of perhaps 150 schools who may visit her school once or twice annually.

After she has had her "experience" the teacher goes to college some more and is then ready to teach 20 to 30 students in modern surroundings with a superintendant at beck and call for help and a janitor to clean the room.

GO-EDS AT I. S. T. C. FOOT THE BILLS NOW

Cedar Falls (I.A.C.P.)—With each footing the bill, social life is flourishing again at Iowa State Teachers College.

For several months during January and February at the school, where there are two men students for every man, the men just didn't seem interested. However, the women there, coming to the winds, invited the to a "Femme's Fancy" dance—all expenses paid. It worked, and the process repeated itself. The college's Valentine day dance. Now the girls are saving their money and buying themselves little up-to-date "Gone with the Wind" gowns.

At first the paper college presented at the reversal of social procedure. It pleased very well, and the process repeated itself. The women summed up by one nonchalance spokesman this way: "If a good idea. Now a fellow's social life won't hamper his supply of pocket money."

The election of a new editor and business manager of the Trumpet is under way, which means the next issue will be published by a new staff.

I want to take this opportunity to thank all members of the student body for the splendid spirit of cooperation which they have shown the present staff. Your support is essential in the publishing of a good Trumpet. It is your paper; hence its quality depends on you.

We have impartially submitted a list of candidates to the one of which we feel that each one is well qualified to direct the publication of next year's paper. In Monday's final election, choose the man who you feel is best fitted for his position; and having chosen him, give him your full support.

Be constructive in your criticism, and help him a helping hand whenever possible. Remember that he is carrying a full schedule of subjects just as you are. It isn't fair to him to say, "We selected you. Give us a good paper every two weeks." We'll be glad to read it to you.

With every student doing his part, next year should see a greater Wartburg Trumpet. And that is going a long way toward making a "greater Wartburg". —Llewellyn Hock

T

And the Greatest of These Is Love

—1 Cor. 13-13

A campus that knows nothing of Christian love is only a group of selfish students living together in a way so lacking in harmony as to make life unpleasant for each and all. Every student who attempts to go through Wartburg without that precious element of Christian love in his heart, sounds a discordant note, or as St. Paul says, "becomes a noisy gong or a clashing symbol."

It doesn't take a large enrollment, a winning team in sports, or magnificent buildings to make a college great. It does take a student body living together in union and harmony, with each member ever ready and willing to sacrifice his own personal desires and prejudices for the good of the students and the college as a whole.

Wartburg is well known for that spirit of love and fellowship that permeates her campus. Students may meet dozens of times daily, but will never fail to exchange a cheery greeting as they pass. Cooperation and support for every good endeavor are given freely. That is the spirit of Wartburg. That has always been the spirit of Wartburg.

With that in mind, challenge every student to continually improve. We are at the present time holding elections for officers of the various organizations on the campus. Rivalry sometimes becomes keen and feelings runs high. Students, watch lest foolish prejudices come to the fore, and let you in an unguarded moment say or do something you may regret.

Choose your candidates impartially and fairly. Do not choose them on the basis of dormitory rivalry or individual popularity, but rather on the basis of ability and experience.

Stop and think each time you vote and cast that vote conscientiously in the light of Christian love.

1961, A. D.

It is quite quiet now, this early in the morning. A few brazen little birds are piping merrily.

Those old bricks? Yes, they were probably a building once. University buildings? Most probably. There's no one now who would remember.

The quiet grey moss inches its way through the mortar and plants gradually to engulf the area. Nearby stands the shattered stump of an old fir tree. The atmosphere is eating away its fibers.

Were there lots of buildings then? Were there lawns and walks and roses in the sunshine? See, here is a bit of an old cement pathway. It crumbles if you step on it.

There is a certain coolness about the day yet. The mists are lifting, the air is cooling to the cheek. But everywhere it is so quiet.

Farm Hand Gives Low-Down on "The Imaginary Invalid"

Intrigued as Prof Pinch-Hits for Ollie Deneef.

The other night it was lookin' around the town that I was lookin' there in Waverly, an' I dropped in on a rehearsal of a play them college kids was plannin' to give next week. "The Imaginary Invalid" or sumpin', I guess they call it.

Got in free, in fact nobody even made a move to throw me out.

Well, sir, I soon discovered why. The whole bunch seemed wrapped up in what they was doing, so I just believed they even knew I was there.

They had a full-scale scene of Dillen-muth, up there, and he was playin' in it. He was sick. An' he was supposed to be dead. An' the person was directin' the play as to how he should marry a guy whose hand was something like a mitten. "Come on, you can't figure it out, till I found out that the person was pinch-bittin' for a right purty gal that cum in last night, who told me she was Ollie Deneef."

Well, sir, I picked up my ears from then on, cuz, by gosh, she was sure purty!

I seen there was an old huzzard they called Streanpley an'
his son, this here "wrong way" Dillenmuth, who was both doctor and patient. "I'm a doctor, my doggy fear thou'd dizen' in! These two birds kept telling the party gal Ollie, who was as hoy as a dog, and three more days to live, unless they fixed him up every day.

By gosh, they never got my doggy out of his hole, and see that he was both quick and dead. Estes an' this Dillenmuth guy kept tellin' the party gal Ollie, who was to marry the doctor or he'd pack off to a convent or sumpin'. An' all the time she was sweet on a nice hunk' feller called Bob Wiederanders.

Well, I began to git some wearied, cuz anybody cud see she wasn't cut out to be no nun, but wouldn't let the poor feed the chickens on a good farm.

"N still I didn't want her to marry that good-for-nothin' quack."

You see, this Dillenmuth, the son you had as a second son, Martina Albrecht. She was a step-mother to this Ollie girl and her kid sister Emma Klein, an' she had a whole shootin'-match. She had to kick off all she could get his money.

They even went worked out hank-ey-toe, cuz the old crappie nephew, Al Martin, had a good leap off an' he an' the maid, the name an' all, started to Lois Hurstad, thump up a good church.

They showed up the quack doctor and the old boy's wife, who sure was one.

But you better go see the play if you wants get the whole business at some of them stinkin' tall pullin'
off. An' at the same time I was so excited, I cum near falling off my chair.

E. U. Hits Jackpot on Coke Dispenser

Coca-Cola waged an all-out campaign for some of America's legions the other night. It was in the SAE hall at Emory university, and the machine was a coke machine (an automatic vendor that mixes coke while you watch) paid off exactly 167 drinks for

Mr. B. Estes. In the slot Silence followed. Disturbed, he rammed another into the machine, grunting noise was heard, then another.

As he picked up the cup, Estes was startled by the ejection of another Coca-Cola. Then came another and another. Estes shouted for help.

SAEs swarmed in and gulped
the "cokes" while the machine gained recognition. An SAE was seen to say, "Dillenmuth and K.A." At the end of half-hour, the crowd, now numbering 45, was rapidly buying Coca-Cola. Logged but the machine evinced no sign of weakening.

When the 157th coke was delivered, everybody quit and the electricity supply of the unit was cut off. A.C.P.

THE CHRISTIAN AND HIGHER EDUCATION

Christ gathered twelve disciples about Him. For three years they walked and talked with Jesus. Their own souls and lives were enriched. They left all and followed Him yet they never suffered want at any time. Their souls were filled with peace and ambitious hopes and desires. It was good to be with Jesus.

Christ wanted them to find His peace and happiness. Nevertheless, Jesus did not want them to keep it unto themselves only in a purely selfish way. They should go forth and share that same joy to others. Sharing their own Savior and His blessings. Therefore the command: "Go ye into all the world and make disciples of all nations!" They obeyed and by the power of God went forth and spread the Gospel to many souls.

Education, Christian education, is like unto that. A student goes to college for higher learning, to enrich himself to equip himself for the tasks of life. That is a fine thing. But unless education finds application it lacks its greatest usefulness. That knowledge and training must be employed for the benefit and enrichment of others. Sharing with one's fellowmen one's abilities, talents, and achievements.

Let us emphasize the "Christian" in education. That puts the principles of Christ behind all our knowledge, wisdom, and work. Blessed is he or she who goes forth into the world equipped with an education that is submissive to the Lord Jesus Christ.

Wartburg college desires to equip its students in that fashion. Wartburg college desires that its alumni be useful citizens of the land, that they be the salt of the earth and the light of the world.

interested, and there goes Mr. Hiltner's game. Her ability in mathematics has not accustomed him to eight years of work as a teller in a bank. Again getting into his five cent's worth, Mr. Hiltner remarked, "That's where I find myself."

John Jr., who had been buying himself with a small road map, a pair of pliers, and a Geocentric map in his interest. At the age of five he knew the capitals of all the states and really embarrassed his mother by asking her to name them.

Faith in Wartburg's Future

"I think firm that the future of Wartburg is adequately shown by the fact that after two years here he built himself a home at every corner of the street. There are other teachers who have my faith!" Mr. Hiltner concluded.

Among the many things that impressed us in this friendly little home was the presence of Dr. Bob Hiltner, the department's student. A closer relationship between faculty and students, would go a long way in making college life a more meaningful and stimulating experience for both students. With men like Mr. Hiltner on the faculty, the interviewers concluded, a friendlier relationship should not be very hard to get.

Northwestern's Purple Parrot told of a student who turned in a 20-year-old term paper from his first year at Northwestern. He A minus, and note from the prof which, roughly, ran like this: "This was an A paper when I wrote it, and by golly it's still worth an A minus!"

ground by students, and he certainly supported our contention that the local press are willing to come to the aid of any who bring about a closer relationship between students and faculty.

This interview will be followed by numerous other consultations with many teachers. We will point out how perfectly natural and easy it is to get to know a teacher outside the classroom, we hope to avoid the notion that the teacher's reflected privilege can thereby bring about a closer relationship between faculty and students.

Doc Likes To Stay Home

Doc likes to go to a very home-loving person. He enjoys spending his spare time in his home, where desirable recreation and other worthwhile activities are maintained. During the course of our conversation we became so interested in just listening that we decided to go to the kitchen one of the things we really intended to learn. The first thing we did discover, though, was that our professor of philosophy only reads a copy of Time on an interesting conversation, and it doesn't have to be in the classroom either.

Doc's children spend much of their leisure in reading. For other diversions they enjoy ping-pong, Chinese checkers and just plain ordinary "good fun" walk. "Oh, the boys are good," says Mrs. Hiltner. "That is I can tell him a joke one time and he'll listen and laugh. Then I can tell him another. I'll tell him the same story and he'll laugh just as heartily the second time. I'm sure he doesn't listen to me all the time," says Mrs. "You see," Mr. Hiltner replied, "it's very easy to keep me entertained."

Beasts Ideal Study

His house is an object of pride and we ask, "Why shouldn't he be? He considers his study 'just what it should be and should be.' Everything at his fingertips, no unnecessary space, three views to the outside, and a single lighted bookcase to characterize the room where our professor ponders over philosophical concepts and religious principles.

Even during the summer months Dr. Hiltner spends much time preparing syllabi for the coming school term. "When I'm not doing that he's off," says Mrs. Hiltner, "in the garden and around the house." Mr. Hiltner, we discovered, would hardly do as president of the U. S. — he is not interested in farming.

Even Dries Dishes

Doc is fairly busy with Sunday chores — but only on Sundays. He takes care of his study and, believe it or not, irons his own shirt.

Mr. Hiltner is a Democrat. Doc, in at least one respect. She has a habit of beating him in Chinese checkers. All she has to do is to turn on a news broadcast, get Doc

GIB MEYER AND SILENCE REIGN

By Lord Byron

Here in the library on a dark, dreary day, Mabel and Wartburg passes before me; yet no one pays any attention to me. I am not exactly what the science club director Thursday, April 16, spoke of when he said, "I can get a lot of pleasure out of just thinking what goes on about me. Here's what happened on a very ordinary evening."

When Gib Meyer opened the door at 7:30 a dozen assorted individuals swarmed into the library. A brief scuffle of papers and a scrap of chart and all is still(?)

Vince LaBarre, editor of the paper, Beamer Blank, peers in, carefully looks around to see who is on isn't in, and quietly sits down. Simba, the quiet, unsmiling, wrinkled, slipper shirt, high-water pants, and "college" box, gets up, walks around the room and sits down again. Eight minutes pass. Finally, "Family" reaches for a cigarette from somebody from whom she can't seem to get away. "I'm going to buy a book first," Roland and Elizabeth are still working on history. The clock slowly ticks away the minutes.

The library is getting crowded now. Even the floor is being stepped on. Beanie Blank peeks in, carefully looks up and sees that he has saved her a chair. A few people leave. The door to the back room squeaks. All talk has stopped. The interior magnificence and gaves into space. Alberta giggles at Louis. Louis giggles back. "Gibb" calls out, "Let's have a game of cards, please." "And all is well."

Shortly after nine Frannie dashes in and dickers with the man at the desk for a reserve room. The back door squeaks again. Louis is just "fratzing around." Two minutes before closing time 90 percent of the population is putting on coats. At 9:30 the bell rings. The library is closing. Al Dillworth dashes in and directs all the books. Eventually leaves. Gib turns off the lights, locks the door, and I am left alone in the darkness.

At Brown university there's a student named Gib. For old fashioned, someone started a check. It developed he was the son of immigrant parents who had Anglicized their name, presumably in Nyawak, Nyawak.

At any rate, the family name formerly had been Prima.

SCIENCE CLUB LEARNS ABOUT PROBABILITY

"Probability" was the theme of the science club director Thursday, April 16, sponsored by the mathematics department.

Prof. Cheleveld opened the discussion with an interesting account of the origin of probability and applied the principles of probability to games of chance. His findings proved that crookedness was prevalent in the gambling dens of Italy during the eighteenth century.

NETMEN WIN FROM TUTORS YESTERDAY

The Knight racketeers drove to Cedar Falls on Friday, April 25, to tangle with the Teachers College net team for the second time in the last week. The match provided both teams with valuable experience for future competition in their respective conferences. Of the five games completed and out of the five that were completed the Knights obtained a three to two advantage. A summary of the results:

Marty Meist (W) and McNabb (TC) met again, and when the match was stopped to decide the score for a double-header, match they each won a set. McNabb won the first set, 6-2, and then Heist came from behind to take the second, 6-3.

Cross (TC) defeated E. Heist (W) in straight sets, 6-3, 6-0.

Heinkamp (W) defeated Hubert (TC) 6-2, 6-4.

Schuster (W) defeated Art Stinger (TC) in a three set duel, 6-3, 4-6, 6-1.

LaBahn (W) defeated Coine (TC) 6-3, 6-2, 6-4, the longest match of the day. After two hours of play, LaBahn pulled through with a well-played victory.

In the doubles play there was a tie for the win in each of the matches. Cross and McNabb (TC) took one set from M. Heist and E. Heist (W) 6-3. Heinkamp and Schuster (W) took one set from Garland and Stinger (TC) 6-3.

Behind The Varsity

By Jim

Since the last issue of the Trumpet much has happened in Wartburg's athletic encounters. Our Knights of the diamond opened their season with a double-header against Penn last Tuesday. Our tennis team has played and won their first match of the year. Basketball and our track stars entered a track meet at Cedar Falls just a week ago. I believe more fellows are out for these three sports than ever before, and their success in the opening engagements has given Wartburg students reason for cheering.

The double-header with Penn last Tuesday surely uncovered some budding stars to help Wartburg's ring in games to come. Don "Junior" Herron, from Marquette, Iowa, established himself as a very reliable pitching mainstay. Dick Landwehr looked swell around first base, and his stickwork is going to add to the Knight's offensive punch. Wendell Heist, although he is well-known around Waverly as a ball player, played his first conference game in a Knight uniform and really showed the crowd some beautiful stuff stopping. These three are the newcomers who will work with our seasoned veterans of former years, such as Capt. Unnon, Ray Langhoff, Pete Peterson, Doc Schaefer, Leeschauer, and Orry Kadikow. Did you notice that inspired pep and fire especially in the infield? I think a lot of credit goes to our spirited second baseman and captain, "Onk" Ihnen. They work out there and keeps everyone of those Knights on their toes all of the time. Onk is a great captain and a real asset to the team. So much for baseball.

Tennis and Track

Last Tuesday our tennis team traveled to T. C. for a practice match and came out on top! The squad is made up of some diligent workers and here's hoping they go places this year!

Track seems to be very popular this year, with quite a few boys reporting regularly for track workouts. Inexperience seems to be the handicap of this year's squad, but there is very promising material on which we can base our hopes. Coach Van is planning to enter several men in various track meets in the Iowa Conference. The best of luck to them in future meets!

Ramblings

A bit of news from Waverly high—Coach Walton S. Koch has been named head football and basketball coach at Cornell college, in Mt. Vernon, Iowa. Koch has made an enviable record at Waverly high and is really qualified for the new job. He has left to Walton S. Koch!

It was good to see and hear the student body at the game last week. It shows Wartburg students are really interested in the all-American game.

The girls are going in for a lot of kittenball this spring. It seems they have some coaches from the opposite sex, too. I've often wondered whether they really try to teach the girls the fine points of kittenball or have a lot of fun showing off!

Next Friday Wartburg's Knights play Upper Iowa. Our Knights will have to play great ball to beat them since the Peacocks lost by only one run to the University of Iowa not long ago. We know you can do it, fellows, we're with you all the way!

Norma says Dorothy why she has a flat tire on each hand why "to balance" . . . Fanny says "No, for ballists" . . . And when Stube and Leeschauer come out Fanny says "bring 'em stuff" . . . So does Helen when the captain goes home.

After a few weeks of rest I again take over my old stand. I think the fresh don't do too bad a job figuring of course that they are still merely lowly Freshmen.

I understand that one Mary Lutes keeps Christianity 202 class in line by cracking her gun. We thought she was doing a good enough job when she brought a balloon to class.

One question I want to ask my good friend Hans Sandrock: If the Wartburg coeds are so classy, and they are—you said so—then why do they have to go to the movies and give a couple of them the privilege of your company? R. S. V. P.

We understand that Hank is looking for a good nurse-maid to handle the adolescents in Grossmann Hall who insist on having a display of fire-works every so often.

A bushel of thanks to those people who insist on cutting across the campus at any place except the right one. Better watch out or we'll see you on you!

We understand that Int. affair between Miss B. and the "River Rat" is pretty solid at the time of this printing. Of course you can never tell though, things change mighty fast over in that neighborhood.

Until next time then I remain your campus correspondent, Wartburg's Winchell.

Remodeling Project in Grossmann Hall

A project has recently been begun in Grossmann Hall to remodel the rooms so as to save some much-needed space.

With a small army of lab for materials and labor, the disappearing type of beds are being made into one popular double-beds. One popular double-bed made available is painting and used for additional closet space.

Alternatively painted wall book cases are also being built and installed.

A few rooms have already been redone. If these meet with the approval of the board of regents, the work will probably be continued during the remaining weeks of school and be completed next summer.

KNIGHTS SPLIT WITH PENN IN DOUBLE GAME

Peterson, Herron
Work on Mound
for the Knights

In two very close games, the Wartburg Knights of the diamond opened their 1941 spring season with a double-header against the Penn Quakers of Columbia Tuesday afternoon. Wartburg won the first 4-3 and lost the second in the first appearance of a Van Dyke coached Wartburg baseball nine.

Neither team scored in the first inning, but in the second frame Landwehr, Knight first baseman, pounded out a double to start off the inning. Herron got on an easy base and Peterson pitched an out to Kalkwarf getting to first safely on an error by Connor. Penn first sacker. With the bases loaded Peterson stuck out and Herron reached first with Landwehr being tagged out at the plate. Harstad was next man up and singled scoring the next two with another single to score the third run.

In the fifth inning Langholz reached first on an error. Landwehr doubled for the second time and Langholz from first Penn scored three runs in their sixth inning to put a walk and two hits to come short of tying the score.

In the second game a pitching duel between Herron, freshman twirler for the Knights, and Ray and Penn sophomore resulted in an excellent game. Both teams were scoreless until the sixth frame when the Quakers again broken their hits and came in for 2 runs in the margin of victory.

The Knights made a gallant attempt to rally in the seventh inning with Herron, Knight pitcher, leading the charge. He opened the inning with a smashing triple far out in right field. Rennau then struck out the next batter with Harstad then pounding out a single and being tagged out as he slid into second ending the Knight rally one run short. TRACK NEWS BY MIKE

According to Coach Van Dyke the track team has been more or less going on its own, but he hopes that in the group we may have some new blood. The boys need work and plenty of it. The basis of a good team is a strong nucleus with the rest of the team working around it. Track is a sport that develops athletes for all other sports.

As of the present time one steady track meet which is the lowa conference meet which will be held the 16 and 17 of May at Loras in Dubuque. Another probable meet is the 20th and 21st of May at the 24 of May.

The boys who are being coming out and working are Fabian Schaefer, Schaefer, Becker, H. L. Borch, Borch, Kamps, Kamps, M. Kamps, H. Obenauer, E. Obenauer, Schaefer, Schaefer, Sitzkowitz, Wiederaenders, and Wagner.
